What am I doing?

I have often thought what the hell am I doing ... Most times I'm dancing at a party like a mad man hand having the ridicule or approval of my peers. Again in this case I know exactly what I'm doing. I'm effecting change.

If one man can think to himself that by doing something different someone else can learn to do it better. I have don't what I wanted to do. If someone can read this and smile and say hey that's me. I have done what I set out to do. If you are reading this now and continue to read on... I have done what I set out to do. I must thank my contributors. Their talent and time even in the face or their own personal issues at times I'm so much appreciated. I love you all.

I look forward to the next issue and this growing and getting better.

few glasses of wine at Paul's luxurious apartment. It doesn't take long for Jon to realize that he is being seduced. Under intense influence, he gives in to temptation and has a great time. Left feeling insecure about his own identity, he must come to terms with the fact that he can be attracted to both men and women. Meanwhile, Jon's friend Maddy (Rachel Castillo), a bisexual artist in a committed lesbian relationship, begins a flirtation with Aaron (Pete Scherer), the scruffy male hipster next door -- putting her relationship with Anna (Emilia Richeson) in jeopardy.

The cast of largely unknown actors delivers refreshingly natural performances (especially Rosen and Castillo). Rosen handles his subject matter with intelligence and sensitivity while developing the frequently debated argument that most people fall somewhere toward the middle of the Kinsey scale. The Art of Being Straight is a must see for anyone who has ever felt that the lines of sexual attraction are not so black and white.

MOVIES: The Art Of Being STRAIGHT.

Adorable newcomer Jesse Rosen writes, produces, directs and stars in this sexy and thought-provoking comedic drama about a previously "straight" twenty-something guy who tests the waters with another man.

The predominately heterosexual Jon (Rosen), bored with New York City, moves to Los Angeles to stay with his best friend, Andy (Jared Grey), and a collection of fratboy stragglers. His sexuality is first called into question when he interviews for a position at an advertising firm. When Paul (Johnny Ray), a hunky executive, takes a special interest in Jon's abilities, he scores a lunch date and a

Gay Marriage:

I want to get married some day which I know will happen. Unfortunately I have to do this in a foreign country that will allow me too. Currently there are five (5) countries that legally allow gay marriage Canada (soon to be my home), Belgium, Holland, South Africa, and Spain and legally in Massachusetts and Connecticut USA as well as Mexico City and Buenos Aires, Argentina and several cities in South America and soon Portugal.

In my opinion, this is a basic right that I have as a human being and a citizen of a country. Removing the religious aspect of this right, being married allows me to visit my partner in the hospital, have joint insurance, tax incentives and just the feeling like you are equal to everyone else and not sharing an apartment, a house or as Bajans would say “playing house”.

In keeping on the economic side of this “right”, gay marriage will benefit the economy of a country like none other. From housing, taxes, to even retail shopping, planning of a wedding the economy will benefit. Marriage should not just between a man and a woman because remember the bible was written or I should say rewritten by man so be very skeptical of the writings of the bible. We should always question anything written by man or done by man because eventually man will manipulate the soul of the writings to benefit himself. GB

Advice to get by in Gay Barbados

Hey ya'll. How wanna doing? I good... I hope you the same way... if not I sorry but don't dwell... Living in this country is a difficult right now. It is even more stressing if you are Gay, Bi, or Transgender, ain't it?

Well that said I was by a popular bar on that new Boardwalk up there in Christ Church, talking with some friends and I come to the realization that though some of us are able to deal with the challenges that this life throws at us, there are others who are having a "bit" of drama (and wanna know I using bit loosely).

I'm Gay... (who knew...) Could you tell me What it's really like to be a boy who likes boys? While gay life on TV seems like a bunch of rainbows and butterflies, I can assure you this is often times far from the truth - Especially in this WONDERFUL place call BIM. The reality of what it's really like to be attracted to the same gender (limp wrists and lisps optional) is sometimes a reality shock for many...

Many seem to thing that dating, for example is easy...

Jokes...

Dating the same sex is a lot harder than it seems. To the heteros of the world: consider yourself lucky. Dating the same sex can be exhausting. You have your guy friends (or your lady friends if you're female), and then you have the opposite sex, which you're always trying to pursue. Seems pretty easy, right?

Imagine having your boyfriends, while also having A boyfriend? Not only does this make the dating game extremely difficult, but loving the same sex leaves you subjected to a single gender leaving the opposite virtually hanging out to dry. Yes of course many of us can tolerate the opposite sex, but sometimes they just do not understand.

Aside from the emotional distinction between friend and lover (which is a task in itself), logistically it can just be a disaster. No need to go into the dirty details (I'll save that for later), but it's not as easy as the birds and the bees taught us when we were young.

Then there is the I KNOW what a boy wants thing... Alright, for those of you reading this that took the step across? Men, remember that girl you were with that was REALLY good in bed? And ladies, remember that guy you dated who knew how to hit the right spot? Consider it a perk of enjoying the same sex, because I can honestly say that I know what a boy wants.

Why? Newsflash readers, I am one! I know what I want, therefore, I know what a boy wants. The sex is still pretty awesome since it's near perfect every time. Of course we'll still find our partners who are inexperienced and don't even know what to do with themselves, but we all know sex is like pizza: If it's good, it's REALLY good; if it's bad, it's still pretty damn good.

Dating; the "pool" is actually the size of a small puddle. You just have to remember that. Okay, so lets say that half of the city comprises men, and the second half comprise women and your odds aren't too shabby, right? Try again; imagine that of the men available only about a fifth of them are interested in other men (and this is being extremely liberal this being Barbados after all). That being said, the dating pool is ridiculously small; considered to be more like the size of a small puddle. No matter the size of the city, chances are you more than likely know just about everyone in the pool, and chances are you (or an ex, or an ex of an ex) have slept together. After all, you can't swing a dick anywhere without running into someone whose slept with someone you know.

If we're seriously interested in meeting someone, chances are we can't wander in hopes of finding our next love. Instead we're typically confined to the gayborhood hitting up the same places each weekend. Now I may be borderline stereotypical, but the odds of me finding my soul mate in Ballard is truly slim to none.

Before I go on... I gotta ask this... wha is it wid people that seem to think we is the worse thing since WMD... for those uh wanna that don't know what that mean... it is Weapons of Mass Destruction. The truth is apart from a few flamers and DQs (drama queens) We are harmless. Truly harmless. We wont hurt a fly (lol some of us even can't), in fact, we've primarily figured one thing out: we're here to enjoy life.

Men – don't be afraid, we're not going to try and get you in bed. If anything, we're probably judging you and thinking about how ill fitted your jeans are. Don't think that we have nothing in common either, because life is more to us than Beyonce, Lady Gaga and Alison Hinds... Britney and Madonna (though you must understand their importance). Like you, most of us can chat with you about one of the following: cars, music, movies, sports.

Ladies – there is no need to be intimidated by our beauty. In fact, if you let us take you under our wings, you too could look just as beautiful as us. But seriously, if we start taking a fancy to you it's because we think you're fierce (and hope you're looking for a personal stylist on the side). And yes, you will have to understand that the closer we get, the more important we become in your life... sometimes even more so than your own husband.

We've got style, we've got class, and we're here to have a good time. Why WOULDN'T you want to befriend one of us?! STUPSE.

We don't all sashay down the street with our rainbow flag.

Just because we're gay doesn't mean we sashay down the street everyday, screaming "We're here, we're queer," nor run around with a rainbow flag. Yes, being gay is a part of our life, but that doesn't mean we have to advertise it on a bus ad. You'd actually be surprised by the amount of same sex individuals in your life who you would've never expected.

Many of us are just like you: businessmen (and women), avid sports fans, recreational drinkers, you name it. Though some of us may have style and culture, we are just like you. So the next time you see a guy traipsing down the street in booty shorts and a midriff exposing tank top, just remember the vast majority of us are NOT like that.

Despite the popular belief, being gay is not a matter of choice. I didn't make this choice". None of us did. As much as I love having virtually no rights, facing ridicule and persecution nearly anywhere I go, this really wasn't a decision made just to cause a stir. STUDY IT!

Finally on the party scene let me say that we know how to get down. Face it people, homos know how to have a good time. We know about all the hotspots and what's going on any given night. We have a knack for finding stiff drinks and beautiful eye-candy (gay, straight, you name it).

If you're ever feeling down or just need to let loose latch on to your favorite gay. Take it from me, they'll make sure you have an incredibly memorable night (if you don't black out), of tasteful and harmless fun.

All that said... that is my advice, my thoughts ... you can take it, you can dismiss it... your choice. What ever you do remember that the Countessa is out ...

for now R.G.

Gay and Christian:

Being Gay is not the end of your life as many may think. Being Christian or religious doesn't mean that can't enjoy life's pleasures as so many may think. Being Gay and Christian doesn't mean that your life is non-existent that you can't have both. Because you can and whoever said that you can't doesn't know what God has plan.

As we know, the Bible was written by man. What I should say, is manipulated by man. Mankind from the beginning of time has been manipulating or altering life to fit him. According to the Bible there are a lot of quotes stating that mankind should not lay with man as he does with a woman. Or this famous quote that homosexuality is an abomination (Leviticus). However, the bible also writes that mankind should not eat shrimp, covet thy neighbor's wife or his ass.

Isn't it amazing that on one hand, the Bible say homosexuality is wrong but verses below those same quotes seems to say it's ok to be homosexual because God loves you despite of it all. However, man has shied away from these obvious parts of the bible because it would be contradicting everything they have said and known to be. If you are gay or questioning, no matter what, you are a product of God's wondrous works.

He didn't make any mistakes and don't ever think you are one. Being gay is a gift from God and we should always celebrate that gift and never feel like an outsider. Being Gay and Christian is extra special because you as a human being have a special connect with God and Christ. So yes, you can be Gay and Christian so be happy and enjoy the wondrous things that God has in store for you and the rest of us.

BUCLEBACK CHRONICLES

By David L Romar

Oh my god!

It has been a long time hasn't it? I mean since I actually sat down and started to write or rather continue on this saga I am calling my chronicles. Since then Crop Over has come and gone and I have only 45 percent gotten over my addiction to pork lime and BRC. You might say I was a socaholic and more power to you if you choose to believe that. I was more into what I could see and believe me there was a lot to see, sample and throw back.

But seriously y'all how was it for you? Fun? Did it live it? Sorry if it didn't.

Let's chat seriously now though. About some of the things I saw this past Crop Over. And coming what, almost two months now, I think it is most timely.

I want to introduce you to someone called Alvin. He is six foot three, plays basketball for one of the top central divisional team and I met him when BRC had their 24 hour fete at the "Base". For all of you out there who out know about the Gaydar – I bow before thee. For those of you now learning about it... You will be astounded by its power.

What is it you might ask? It is the best thing to happen to Gay/Bi person on the face of this earth. It is you way of knowing who is gay or who isn't. Something like women's intuition but better.

Gaydar though is best defined as the name might suggest is gay radar. It refers to someone's ability to assess someone else's sexual orientation as gay bisexual or straight. It usually relies on relies on usually non verbal sensory information and intuition. These include the sensitivity to social behaviours and mannerisms; for instance acknowledging flamboyant mannerism, overtly rejecting traditional gender roles, a person's occupation and grooming habits.

If you are a guy and you have this power use it. It helps you tremendously especially if you are trying to score a lovely crumpet or English muffin or a nice angus steak with ALL the trimmings. But enough of that lesson for now this is not gay 101.

Anyhow, back to Alvin. This chocolate brown marvel of a man that I saw that night was a trip. Hitting on every woman that pass and bashing every effeminate man that he saw. He cussed at every masculine woman that he saw that wouldn't give him the time of day.

But you know when there is something nagging you all the time and you can't

I got a tongue lashing from him (not the desirous kind either) when I barely asked him to chill, relax. I heard about how I supporting nastiness, how I is more “buller” and how I gun dead nasty. Babylon bun fyah pun you – I think was the correct expression that he used.

Now in my short time writing this column, I hope that you have become a bit closer to me and who I am and what I stand for. I hope too that you will understand why I am the way I am. If you are a bit unsure – fine let me lay it out clearly – Pellucidly for those politicians and scholars who among us want to be like that. I like dick. I also like cunt. I make no excuses, qualms what so ever about it. Just that I like beef more than I like fish sorry ladies.

This Alvin character was bothering me and with his behavior all night and quite frankly I was tempted to knock that fucker into tarnation but there was this itchy feeling at the back of my mind about him. I should have followed my Mable Madea Simmons instinct. Would you believe that later that night the same Alvin was at a party I was at in St. Peter, that bugger was the bottom for the largest flaming queen I have ever seen. And would you believe they had the gall to tell me that he was sorry, he didn't know and a whole bunch uh shite?

I am telling you all this to get to a crucial point and what I will call my “lesson for today”.

You might be gay or bi, living life on the down low, WHATEVER. In this community, there is one thing that we have amongst MOST of us. That is respect. Respect for others (I hope) but most of all respect for self. Too often we spend our time bashing and crying down others and also just plain being ridiculous. Who are you to judge?

That's just my five cents. Hope you all have a great weekend.

Hooking up

- General Safety Tips:

* Mix your own drinks/Don't leave drinks unattended. Getting you drunk or giving you knockout drops is an easy way to cloud your judgment.

* Find out who your date is. Ask for your date's first name, where they work and live, what they like and do not like. Ask around if anyone knows the person.

* Introduce your date to others. Introduce your date to your friends or the bartender. Tell a friend where you are going. Make sure your date knows you spread the word about them.

* Protect your valuables. Do not carry extra cash. If you bring someone home, do not leave your wallet, cash or valuables in sight. Your possessions and the person you brought home could all be gone while you are in the shower or sleeping.

* Ask about his health status. Find out his HIV and STD status so that you can act appropriately. We strongly recommend that you use protection. Whether you choose to use protection or not is up to you but at least know what you are getting into. Also remember that not everyone is honest and some will not tell you their real status. Review our Health Resource page.

Online Safety Tips:

* Protect your security. Never give anyone your password no matter why they say they need it or who they say they are. If someone asks you for your password, report them here. If you think someone knows your password, change it. For more security you may also want to change your account email address password where the system sends you login info.

* Protect your privacy. If you want to give someone your real name, e-mail address, phone number, etc you should get to know him a little and also ask him to provide you with the same info.

Email him and call him to check that he gave you his real email and phone number and get to know him more. Never give out any financial information, your social security number or things like your passport number, bank account numbers.

* Be cautious about revealing information that could identify you. For example, if you give someone your listed phone number, they can get your real name and street address.

* Remember that when you meet someone you've chatted with online, you're really meeting them for the first time. When you're online you don't have non-verbal cues such as voice inflection or body language to guide your judgement of their honesty or intentions.

* For your first meeting, pick a place that's public and neutral. If you're traveling to visit them in their town or neighborhood, you should pick a place you're comfortable with when you arrive. Take a cell phone with you and let others know where you are going.

Ricky Martin Gay Bombshell: 'I am a Fortunate Homosexual Man'

After years of fighting off rumors about his sexuality, Latin singer Ricky Martin has finally just posted the following message on his official Web site, coming out and telling the world he is gay.

"Today is my day, this is my time, and this is my moment. These years in silence and reflection made me stronger and reminded me that acceptance has to come from within and that this kind of truth gives me the power to conquer emotions I didn't even know existed ... I am proud to say that I am a fortunate homosexual man. I am very blessed to be who I am," he wrote.

"What will happen from now on? It doesn't matter. I can only focus on what's happening to me in this moment. The word 'happiness' takes on a new meaning for me as of today. It has been a very intense process. Every word that I write in this letter is born out of love, acceptance, detachment and real contentment. Writing this is a solid step towards my inner peace and vital part of my evolution," Marin continues.

Why is Ricky Martin coming out now? He admits he never talked about his sexuality because people advised him not to. "Many people told me: 'Ricky it's not important,' 'it's not worth it,' 'all the years you've worked and everything you've built will collapse,' 'many people in the world are not ready to accept your truth, your reality, your nature.' Because all this advice came from people who I love dearly, I decided to move on with my life not sharing with the world my entire truth. Allowing myself to be seduced by fear and insecurity became a self-fulfilling prophecy of sabotage. Today I take full responsibility for my decisions and my actions," he adds.

Earlier this month, Barbara Walters revealed she regretted trying to force Martin to open up about his sexuality in a 2000 interview, saying that her questioning may have ended his career. "In 2000, I pushed Ricky Martin very hard to admit if he was gay or not, and the way he refused to do it made everyone decide that he was," she told The Toronto Star. "A lot of people say that destroyed his career, and when I think back on it now, I feel it was an inappropriate question."

During the interview, Walters tells him, "You know, you could stop these rumors. You could say, as many artists have, 'Yes I am gay,' or you could say, 'No I'm not,' or you could leave it, as you are, ambiguous. I don't want to put you on the spot, but it's in your power to do it."

THE LIPSTICK GAME

XOXO B#$@%

It's all about the xoxo, or the OMFG, or maybe it's the LMFAO, yes we've all been victims to the infamous LOL breakdown of the English language and its moral decay. Watch how our generation has fallen from grace to txt HELL!

Today hardly anyone that knows what a website is, is taking the time to read, far more write, which has given birth to a new generation of thinkers and doers who just want to make everything shorter, quicker and easier to understand, see its all about breaking it down.
Ill show you how....

Example: OLD GENERATION VERSION 2001: you are cordially invited to a birthday gathering for Shawn white, on the 23rd of March at the royal pavilion for 5 pm, guest are asked to bring a wine as a token of appreciation for the birthday boy!

NEW GENERATION 2010: U R NVITD TO A B DAY PRTY FOR Shawn white 23 march @ Royal PAVLLN@ 5PM.B.Y.O.B!!

The change is monumental!, how we have managed to make it so less wordy but still carrying the weight of the message all the same. Effective you say, or is it defeating the purpose of language and what it stands for.?

Now this isn't texting for dummies, this is merely a reference guide to spot what difference technology has brought about, and more so how it has affected our state of mind as a people are we becoming robots?

FACEBOOK,oh facebook, now me of all people should be talking, but I have to say that I love updating my status on face book,it make s me feel like im letting my little world in on what's going on with me ,and in turn they do the same ,so you can see where the affirmation comes from thus making it more habitual.

Now there are 209 million face book users worldwide, and counting, that number alone, is quite a chunk of the earth's population, that large a number signifies a change in human history that I don't think has ever been so far reaching ,so many people to want to do the same thing, which is: get a face book account, why? Why did you do it?

Why did the guy in his 40's drinking beer get it? Why did the mom who wants to feel like she understands her kids get it? ,and it's the same reason the business guy on wall street has one, people need to feel connected ,whether its to someone they can see or not that interaction serves a s a platform for so many things to so many people, Think of the young aspiring model who post her pics online in hopes of getting "noticed" or the garage band that keeps posting videos on you tube trying to get a A and R guy from a label to notice them .Fact is technology gives people hope in situations where other wise it wouldn't exist.

So when doest it get to much ,when thing s like people disappearing after meeting some creep online with out even bringing a friend along, just because he told you to or, "you were cute on face book", now that's when it has gotten to a point where the authorities have to come in to play, pedophiles ,

These are the technology users that sicken me the most, praying on low self esteem teens and lonely boys who cant handle their hormones, as with all great things even technology falls short of becoming fully slime proof. We have yet to create a safe place for teens and unsuspecting young ones to learn and txt and be free of persecution from sickos like somedumbperv @ hotmail.com.

Enough about pedophiles lets get to the good stuff SEX TXTNG anyone?

A new version of txtng is hitting it big with the fan boys of the internet ,a testament to this can be. S.G.

Personal Grooming

Masturbation, Not Just A Solo Sport

"I took a month break and now I am finally back to bring you the goodness that is sexuality on Warm And Tasty Blog as well as M.A.L.E. blog"

-Noble P

Not every relationship is a sexual one. Even in sexual relationships that can most certainly involve no penetration what so ever. Masturbation has often been perceived as an individual solo type project.

But everything is better in pairs. Which means none other than mutual masturbation. It is one of the great ways to sharing an intimate moment and on top of that deep dark sexual secrets! I will say that I was never a fan of mutual masturbation until it was done with the right person; and OH LORD JESUS ITS FANTASTIC! So here are some little tricks to add to your bag of tricks when you aren't feeling like being poked or poking someone for the night.

Being Comfortable

Before you can show out in front of someone else you have to be content with yourself. Know what things you like, so you can share them with your partner and they can give you a hand. While exploring what is good for you, leave no stone unturned...TRY IT ALL no matter how crazy it sounds. Because you just may like it and on top of that your partner may just even LOVE it.

Timing And Talking About It

With everything you cannot just jump into a situation. Do not just spring the idea on your partner while you are at Walmart....Unless they like that kind of kinky thing. Talking dirty is a form of foreplay and can just get your partner in the mood for anything. If your partner says no off the bat don't worry about it I am sure they will come around. If you two are engaging in penetrative sex anyhow then it shouldn't be a problem simply because its incorporated in foreplay.

Taking Turns/Masturbating Together/Each Other

Share the wealth! This is your time to learn what turns both of you on, a time for you to express to your partner what you want them to do for you and vice verse. Mutual masturbation could be a mutual thing or a me doing you thing or a you doing me....Experiment! Some people make a game out of mutual masturbation and try to finish each other off at the same time. Or hey you can see who finishes first or who can hold out the longest. If you were a little embarrassed or shy you can come in at the end and surprise your partner!

Eye Contact

Once you two are both into the groove eye contact can be the ultimate turn on. When in the act of sex your eyes can tell a lot. This can also go hand and hand with talking about those fantasies the both of you have.

Mock Sex

So what you two may just be masturbating together it doesn't mean that they cant tease you in a faux doggy style or faux spork or even a faux Screaming Pelican. Mocking these positions will enhance your sexual response from masturbation and even bring about fantasies and scenarios.

Sex Toys

Although you aren't entering your partner and they aren't physically entering you.....they can assist in a sex toy having the pleasure of doing so. Sex toys are an easy reminder that sex shouldn't be so militant and serious. Its a chance to let loose and have fun. If bold enough show them how you like to use the toy so they can use it on you.

Don't be afraid to bring up mutual masturbation it is just another form of foreplay.

MISSION STATEMENT

To educate, care and support our brothers and sisters, coming together as one to make a difference.

At United Gays & Lesbians Against AIDS Barbados (UGLAAB), we believe that we must all join the fight to stop HIV/AIDS through dispelling myths and misconceptions about the disease and giving others the hard facts about the healthy choices they can make in life.

Thus, our aim is to promote love, tolerance and understanding in an effort to bridge the knowledge gap on health and HIV related issues, and to address some of the issues faced by those in the gay community.

HISTORY OF UGLAAB

UGLAAB was first started in March 2001 to address the growing realization of an early sexual debut of the nation's youth. The organization got involved in providing various services to the young people in the community.

EDUCATE: Our community's men and women about LIFE, LOVE, RESPECT and SAFER SEX practices.

PROVIDE: A "Safe Space" for all persons who wish to learn more about lifestyles and sexuality without any form of bias.

SUPPORT: Our members and all others where necessary to help them live more productive lives.

PROMOTE: The belief that all men are created equal, and as such you should be treated that way.

In addition, UGLAAB provides Peer Education, Voluntary Counseling & Testing services and Bereavement Counseling for the community at large.

Today, UGLAAB is involved in providing many community-outreach services and the organization has partnered with a number of other NGOs on various projects. One such project is the DFID Private Sector Project — Accelerating the Private Sector Response to HIV/AIDS In the Caribbean.

ACCELERATING THE PRIVATE SECTOR RESPONSE TO HIV/AIDS IN THE CARIBBEAN

The DFID project provides UGLAAB with the opportunity to extend our services to the tourism sector. UGLAAB is committed to this project and will:

1. Conduct educational presentations on request basis for tourism enterprises.
